New Old Fashioned Ways New Old Fashioned Ways:

Grandma's Ways For Modern Days Diana Peacock, Paul Peacock, 2014-02-21 Grandma's Ways represents a large repository of knowledge that we have mostly forgotten. With a little modification for these busy modern times, Techniques for preserving food, keeping hens and bees, growing vegetables and fruit, making your own cosmetics, and a host of other things will bring us not only closer to the products we enjoy but closer to benefiting from the work we do for ourselves. There is nothing more satisfying than cooking wholesome food from scratch at home, baking your own bread, growing your own vegetables, foraging in the wild, and even making your own household cleaning products. Not only will you live a more sustainable life in terms of the environment, you'll save money too.

Evaluating Evidence George Akita, 2008-05-20 Evaluating Evidence is based on the grueling lessons learned by a senior scholar during three decades of tutoring by and collaboration with Japanese historians. George Akita persisted in the difficult task of reading documentary sources in Japanese, most written in calligraphic style, out of the conviction of their centrality to the historian's craft and his commitment to a positivist methodology to research and scholarship. He argues forcefully in this volume for an inductive process in which the scholar seeks out facts on a subject and through observation and examination of an extensive body of data is able to discern patterns until it is possible to formulate certain propositions. In his introduction, Akita relates how and why he decided to adopt a positivist approach and explains what he means by the term as it applies to humanistic studies. He enumerates the difficulties linked with reading primary sources in Japanese by looking at a variety of unpublished and published materials and identifying a major problem in reading published primary sources: the intervention of editors and compilers. He illustrates the pitfalls of such intervention by comparing the recently published seventeen-volume diary of Prime Minister Hara Takashi (1856-1921) a photo reproduction of the diary in Hara's own hand and an earlier published version. Using documents related to Yamagata Aritomo (1838-1922) a figure of central importance in Japan's post-Restoration political history, he demonstrates the use of published and transcribed primary sources to sustain, question, or strengthen some of the themes and approaches adopted by non-Japanese scholars working on modern Japanese history. He ends his inquiry with two case studies examining closely the methods of the highly acclaimed American historians John W. Dower and Herbert P. Bix.

Semantics and Cultural Change in the British Enlightenment: New Words and Old Carey McIntosh, 2020-05-18 Obsolete old words from seventeenth-century English villages reflect the realities of working-class life: exhausting labor, dirt, bizarre foods, magic horses, outrageous sexism, feudal duties. New words first appearing in print 1650-1800 reflect a middle-class culture very different from an earlier courtly culture interested in money, coffee houses, and self-fulfillment. The book contains chapters on pre-industrial and middle-class culture, the scientific revolution, and semantic change. They give strong evidence that new words and the new senses of old words played a key role in the British Enlightenment, its links with quantification and natural science, its tendencies towards reorganization and democracy, its redefinitions and revitalizations of women's roles, social stereotypes, the public sphere and the very concepts of individualism, sociability and civilization itself. Nimo's War, Emma's War Cynthia Enloe, 2010-06-02 Nimo Maha Safah Shatha Emma Danielle Kim Charlene In a book that once again blends her distinctive flair for capturing the texture of everyday life with shrewd political insights, Cynthia Enloe looks closely at the lives of eight ordinary women: four Iraqis and four Americans during the Iraq War. Among others, Enloe profiles a Baghdad beauty parlor owner, a teenage girl who survived a massacre, an elected member of Parliament, the young wife of an Army sergeant, and an African American woman soldier. Each chapter begins with a close-up look at one woman's experiences and widens into a dazzling examination of the larger canvas of war's gendered dimensions. Bringing to light hidden and unexpected theaters of operation, prostitution, sexual assault, marriage, ethnic politics, sexist economies, these stories are a brilliant entryway into an eye-opening exploration of the actual causes, costs, and long-range consequences of war. This unique comparison of American and Iraqi women's diverse and complex experiences sheds a powerful light on the different realities that together we call, perhaps too easily, the Iraq war.

Stratification Wendy Bottero, 2005 This book offers an exciting new perspective on differentiation and inequality, looking at how our most personal choices of sexual partners, friends, consumption items, and lifestyle are influenced by hierarchy and social difference. Education in Germany since Unification David Phillips, 2000-01-01 This volume is concerned with aspects of education in Germany over the 10 years prior to 2000, focusing on schools, teachers, vocational training, and higher education in those eastern parts of the Federal Republic which formerly constituted the territory of the German Democratic Republic. The articles deal with notions of transition and adaptation at a time of considerable upheaval and rapid change. There is a particular focus in some contributions on the problems involved in conducting research on the views of teachers involved in complex processes of adjustment to a new status quo. How Traditions Live and Die Olivier Morin, 2016 Of all the things we do and say, most will never be repeated or reproduced. Once in a while, however, an idea or a practice generates a chain of transmission that covers more distance through space and time than any individual person ever could. What makes such transmission chains possible? For two centuries, the dominant view from psychology to anthropology was that humans owe their cultural prosperity to their powers of imitation. In this view, modern cultures exist because the people who carry them are gifted at remembering, storing, and reproducing information. How Traditions Live and Die proposes an alternative to this standard view. What makes traditions live is not a general-purpose imitation capacity. Cultural transmission is partial, selective, often unfaithful. Some traditions live on in spite of this because they tap into widespread and basic cognitive preferences. These attractive traditions spread not by being better retained or more accurately transferred but because they are transmitted over and over. This theory is used to shed light on various puzzles of cultural change, from the distribution of bird songs to the staying power of children's rhymes, and to explain the special relation that links the human species to its cultures. Morin combines recent work in cognitive anthropology with new advances in quantitative cultural history to map and predict the diffusion of traditions This book is both an introduction and an accessible alternative to contemporary theories of cultural evolution
