Canals in a Changing Britain Jules P. Gehrke, 2024-12-15. Canals in a Changing Britain: Construction, Culture, and Environment, 1760-1968 assesses canals as a major technological system re-shaping Britons' relationship with their landscape and environment for over 200 years. It offers a sustained narrative addressing canal construction in the late eighteenth century, living and working communities alongside canals in the nineteenth century, canals' relationship to concerns regarding de-industrialization in the early twentieth century, and canals as sites for the experience of nature and rural life in the postwar era between 1945 and 1968. This book makes use of a variety of archival and published material on canals and references academic publications on histories of technology and the environment as well as scholarship related specifically to canals. It argues contemporary conversations regarding the current and future use of canals as multi-faceted sites of recreation, leisure, heritage, and experience of the natural environment in Britain must be seen in the context of an arc of historical experience between 1760 and 1968.

The Evolution of the British Empire and Commonwealth, from the American Revolution Alfred LeRoy Burt, 1956.

The Industrial Revolutions, Volume 1 J. Chartres, 1994-03-23. Britain in the sixteenth century appeared little different from its European neighbours and shared their renewed Malthusian pressures as population growth threatened the resource base of the economy. Yet by the later seventeenth century, Britain had broken the limits imposed by food production. With the development of its trade, transport, and industry, and the effective integration of its economy as a whole, the country was becoming by the later eighteenth century more urban and industrial than its neighbours and was rapidly overtaking the Netherlands as the least rural country in Europe. This volume of key readings sets British development in its broad context and in presenting the strong evidence of the extent and nature of its economic advance in the seventeenth and early eighteenth centuries provides the critical background for the understanding of the late process of British industrialization

The Battleship Builders Constructing and Arming British Capital Ships Ian Buxton, Ian Johnston, 2013-05-08 The launch in 1606 of HMS Dreadnought the world's first all big gun battleship rendered all existing battle fleets obsolete but at the same time it wiped out the Royal Navy's numerical advantage so expensively maintained for decades Already locked in the same arms race with Germany Britain urgently needed to build an entirely new battle fleet of these larger more complex and more costly vessels In this she succeeded spectacularly in little over a decade fifty such ships were completed almost exactly double that of what Germany achieved It was only made possible by the company's vast industrial nexus of shipbuilders engine manufacturers armament fleets and specialist armour producers whose contribution to the Grand Fleet is too often ignored This heroic achievement and how it was done is the subject of this book It charts the rise of the large industrial conglomerates that were key to this success looks at the reaction to fast moving technical changes and analyses the politics of funding this vast national effort both before and beyond the Great War It also attempts to assess the true cost and value of the Grand Fleet in terms of the resources consumed And finally by way of contrast it describes the effects of the post war recession industrial contraction and the very different responses to rearmament in the run up to the Second World War
