Desire and Fictional Narrative in Late Imperial China Martin W. Huang, 2020-03-23 In this new study of desire in Late Imperial China Martin Huang argues that the development of traditional Chinese fiction as a narrative genre was closely related to changes in conceptions of the fundamental nature of desire He further suggests that the rise of vernacular fiction during the late Ming dynasty should be studied in the context of contemporary debates on desire along with the new and complex views that emerged from those debates

Desire and Fictional Narrative in Late Imperial China shows that the obsession of authors with individual desire is an essential quality that defines traditional Chinese fiction as a narrative genre Thus the maturation of the genre can best be appreciated in terms of its increasingly sophisticated exploration of the phenomenon of desire

Easy Reading Writing Peter E. Abresch, 2001

Theaters of Desire: Authors, Readers, and the Reproduction of Early Chinese Song-Drama, 1300-2000 P. Sieber, 2003-07-17 Blending a flair for textual nuance with theoretical engagement Theaters of Desire not only contributes to our understanding of the most influential form of early Chinese song drama in local and international cultural contexts but adds a Chinese perspective to the scholarship on print culture authorship and the regulatory discourses of desire The book argues that particularly between 1550 and 1680 Chinese elite editors rewrote and printed early plays and songs so called Yuan dynasty zaju and sanqu to imagine and embody new concepts of authorship readership and desire an interpretation that contrasts starkly with the national and racially oriented reception of song drama developed by European critics after 1735 and subsequently modified by Japanese and Chinese critics after 1897 By analyzing the critical and material facets of the early song and play tradition across different historical periods and cultural settings Theaters of Desire presents a compelling case study of literary canon formation

Owen, Jr.,2012-01-01 Can we have more teacher intellectuals in our classrooms This book demonstrates that we can But many things have to change before intellectual standards appear again in public schools David Owen attempts to show but not in outline form how we can revise our schools Can we escape the rut in which public education finds itself dominated by the inane tests the stifling reduction of school to job training and the insane transformation of a life affirming odyssey of the mind to clich s information gathering and slogans We can reclaim the beauty of an education if we join David and re vise our classrooms Education is uncertain risky wonderously adventurous yet schooling has become stale No tediously dreadful There is a need to revise Reject standardized tests Repeal pay for performance Eject No Child Left Behind before no child has a thoughtful mind left It is time to revise and David s book explains why Are we still interested in the mind soul and substance of the individual Does it matter who we are and become or just what we do If these questions still matter dwell carefully with David s ideas and transform yourself your students school community state nation and world It is time to revise them all John A Weaver Georgia Southern University

Critifiction Raymond Federman,1993-01-01 This book examines how beginning in the 1960s up to the present a new type of fiction was created in America but also in Europe and Latin America in response to the cultural social and political turmoil of the time The author has coined the term Surfiction for this New Fiction Written in an informal provocative style by an internationally known practitioner these essays examine the cultural social and political conditions that forced serious writers to reflect often within the work itself on the act of writing fiction in the modern world The entire book can be read as a manifesto for the present and future of the new fiction This book is the first in the SUNY series in Postmodern Culture edited by Joseph Natoli Literature and the Writer Michael J. Meyer,2004 Literature and the Writer was first conceived with the hope the essays would shed light on several dimensions of the authorial craft It was the hope of the editor that the selected essays would examine not only writers choice of vocabulary but also their deliberate selection of grammatical constructions and word order and their seamless weaving together of plots and imagery Moreover the analyses would also draw attention to how the writing process impacts the development of characters and the formulation of thematic strands in fiction Thus a wide variety of authors are deliberately selected to give the text depth writers of popular fiction as well as modern classics are included and contrasts are established between traditional writers and those who prefer to follow experimental trends Modernists are set against postmodernists absurdists vs realists minority ethnicities vs majority cultures and dominant genders appear in contrast to subordinated ones Clearly the major tenet of the collection is that the writing profession provides an unending dilemma that deserves to be explored in more detail as readers try to determine how authorial voices confuse while simultaneously elucidating their audience how texts are constructed by authors and yet deconstructed by the very words they choose to include how silence functions as inaudible yet audible discourse and how authorial self concept shapes not only itself but is also echoed in the fictional characters writers who appear in the texts

High School Journalism Jim Streisel, 2016-04-14 High school journalists share the same objectives as professional reporters finding the story writing the story and packaging the story so that it appeals to an audience Understanding how to best accomplish these objectives is key to the student on the newspaper yearbook or Web site staff but the fundamental art of storytelling and story presentation are not always at the center of high school journalism classes Student journalists must first understand that storytelling at its most basic level is about people and that understanding the audience is essential in deciding how to present the story This handbook for high school journalists and teachers offers practical tips for all elements of school journalism The author covers the essential components that students must understand information gathering writing standard and alternative coverage and packaging Students will find valuable information about identifying news interviewing research narrative writing style editing visual presentation and layout The book also covers the legal rights of student journalists objective vs opinion writing staff planning and organization and Web based journalism Each chapter includes study guides for practical applications of the concepts discussed Instructors considering this book for use in a course may request an examination copy here
