Return Migration Decisions Ruth Achenbach, 2016-10-21 Ruth Achenbach develops a model of individual return migration decision making which examines both the process and the decisive factors in return migration decision making of Chinese highly skilled workers and students in Japan. She proposes to answer a question yet insufficiently explained by migration research: why do migrants deviate from their migration intentions and return sooner or later than planned or not at all? Her study integrates factors from the spheres of career, family and lifestyle and redefines stages in long term decision making processes thereby contributing to decision and migration theory. She analyzes migrants' shifting priorities over the course of migration including a perspective on life course and on the impact of the triple catastrophe of March 11, 2011.

Return to Meaning Mats Alvesson, Yiannis Gabriel, Roland Paulsen, 2017 This book argues that we are currently witnessing not merely a decline in the quality of social science research but the proliferation of meaningless research of no value to society and modest value to its authors apart from securing employment and promotion. The explosion of published outputs at least in social science creates a noisy cluttered environment which makes meaningful research difficult as different voices compete to capture the limelight even briefly. Older more significant contributions are easily neglected as the premium is to write and publish not read and learn. The result is a widespread cynicism among academics on the value of academic research sometimes including their own. Publishing comes to be seen as a game of hits and misses devoid of intrinsic meaning and value and of no wider social uses whatsoever. Academics do research in order to get published not to say something socially meaningful. This is what we view as the rise of nonsense in academic research which represents a serious social problem. It undermines the very point of social science. This problem is far from academic. It affects many areas of social and political life entailing extensive waste of resources and inflated student fees as well as costs to tax payers. Part two of the book offers a range of proposals aimed at restoring meaning at the heart of social research and drawing social science back address the major problems and issues that face our societies. Impacts and Outcomes of Global University Rankings Kayyali, Mustafa, 2025-10-15 Global university rankings shape higher education policies, institutional strategies and student experiences worldwide. These rankings measure and compare universities based on indicators like research output, academic reputation and faculty qualifications. While rankings can enhance transparency and promote healthy competition, they also generate consequences. High rankings can attract funding, top faculty and international students. Meanwhile the pressure may lead institutions to prioritize metrics potentially decreasing teaching quality, social impact and equity. As their influence grows it becomes important to examine the real impacts and outcomes of global university rankings on higher education systems. Impacts and Outcomes of Global University Rankings explores how global university rankings influence institutional behavior, resource allocation and policy decisions within higher education.
