Farnsworth identifies a pattern of filmmakers' obsessions with archetypal rituals centered on sacrifice and the family in films made between 1977 and 1983, a period of political upheaval on both sides of the Atlantic. Combining a strong historical reading of the films in a sociopolitical context and utilizing Queer Theory as a framework for his arguments, Farnsworth offers a close examination of key films of the period, including works by Stanley Kubrick, Robert Altman, and Francis Ford Coppola, and provides a fascinating and timely glimpse of an important political and cinematic time. Marking the end of a more liberal era, the late seventies and early eighties witnessed the growth of reactionary conservative movements such as the New Religious Political Right. These were the years that gave birth to movies from esoteric art house pictures to blockbusters such as Star Wars that seemed in many cases to be adaptations of primordial mythology subverting liberal to moderate views into reactionary depictions of family life. Although filmmakers had turned to these myths to shape their works, Farnsworth observes the unstable, volatile nature of the archetypes deconstructed their best social intentions into something rich, strange, and deadly. This thought-provoking work will be of interest to students of social history as well as film studies.

The Princess Athura: A Romance of Iran Samuel W. Odell, 2022-07-15 Excerpt It was morning on the plains of Asia. Long-legged herons stood in the shallows of the yellow Jaxartes, bathing their feet in its sluggish flood and warming their bodies in the first rays of the sun. They were silently and uneasily watching a host of armed men drawn out in long battle lines across the lowlands bordering the southern margin of the stream. Where the armed host stood was a sandy plain about two miles wide. Beyond this was a low range of sand hills which trended away to the southeast, enlarging the plain as they receded from the river. Cutting through hills and plain to join the river bed was a dry water course where in winters only a torrent flowed. In it were some stunted trees and scattered thickets of shrubs. To the north of the river was a vast plain on which the dry yellow grass had been withered by summer sun and wind. Far in the east appeared dimly through a blue haze the summits of high mountains. Westward the river had yet to flow half its length to the Oxian swamps. Here it was wide and shallow and its banks were low and marshy. The rays of the sun sparkled on the brazen breastplates and shining blades of battle axes on the spear points and gilded helmets of two hundred thousand men who here awaited the approach of a far more numerous host coming down from the east along the river towards them. The light rested softly upon the stern bearded faces of veterans of many wars and the softer cheeks of young men on this their first campaign. They were men of Iran for the most part, though some were Assyrians, Babylonians, Arabs, Hebrews, or Greeks from the Ionian cities. They were followers of Cyrus the King of Kings, the Great King, ever victorious, Lord of the World.

Lord Ramsay's Return Elisabeth Fairchild, 1996 Young Prudence Stanhope was quite knowledgeable with the devices and deceptions designed by men to undo a lady's defenses. Nothing, however, could have prepared her for the elegant, handsome, and charming Lord Charles Ramsay, who has just returned from India with his own seductive skills.

The Orient in Chaucer and Medieval Romance Carol Falvo Heffernan, 2003 A study of romance and the Orient in Chaucer and in anonymous popular metrical romances The idea of the Orient is a major motif in Chaucer and medieval romance and this new study reveals much about its use and significance setting the literature in its historical context and thereby offering fresh new readings of a number of texts The author begins by looking at Chaucer s and Gower s treatment of the legend of Constance as told by the Man of Law demonstrating that Chaucer s addition of a pattern of mercantile details highlights the commercial context of the eastern Mediterranean in which the heroine is placed she goes on to show how Chaucer s portraits of Cleopatra and Dido from the Legend of Good Women read against parallel texts especially in Boccaccio reveal them to be loci of medieval orientalism She then examines Chaucer s inventive handling of details taken from Eastern sources and analogues in the Squire s Tale showing how he shapes them into the western form of interlace The author concludes by looking at two romances Floris and Blancheflur and Le Bone Florence of Rome she argues that elements in Floris of sibling incest are legitimised into a quest for the beloved and demonstrates that Le Bone Florence be related to analogous oriental tales about heroic women who remain steadfast in virtue against persecution and adversity Professor CAROL F HEFFERNAN teaches in the Department of English Rutgers University
