sufficiently demonstrated that it can address real world problems and subsequently lacked a focus on relevant policy issues. Second they argued that regional science had become too narrow in focus and had moved away too far from real people and their daily concerns or struggles in life. This was not the first time we had witnessed these sorts of arguments both from outside the discipline and from within. Sayer 1976 was perhaps the first to argue for a shift from a model based focus in regional science to one based on political economy. Breheny 1984 criticised the deep ignorance among regional scientists of the nature of practical policy making and implementation see also Rodwin 1987 for similar views in the mid 1980s. Such self reflection is a feature of many disciplines as they reach maturity. There have been many similar reflections in geography Johnston 1996 Barnes 1996 and economics see the collection in the January edition of the Economic Journal 1991. The New Zealand Journal of Science and Technology, 1924 Volumes 33-38 Section B include 1949-1955 of New Zealand geological abstracts published by the New Zealand Geological Survey. Survey of Social Science Frank Northen Magill, 1991. New Zealand's First World War Heritage Imelda Bargas, Tim Shoebridge, 2015-04-01. Rediscover New Zealand's hidden First World War history through the places where it happened. No battles were fought here yet the First World War intruded into the daily life of every New Zealander who remained at home. This ground breaking book provides vivid new insights into their experiences through exploring the places where they lived, worked, coped and mourned: army camps, fortifications, soldier settler farms, town halls, wharves, convalescent homes and hospitals, cemeteries and war memorials, dairy factories and woollen mills. From Northland to Stewart Island our landscape is signposted with thousands of poignant memorials and behind the facades of old buildings, beneath scrub and behind farm fences lies a less visible landscape of war and hundreds of hidden stories waiting to be told: a soldier's name carved on a remote railway station, a once bustling uniform factory in the heart of a city, a long abandoned gun battery. This unique book will be a revelation to all New Zealanders. Extensively illustrated with new and period photographs and fascinating maps it contains original research and information that will open the eyes of every reader to places and stories in their community hidden in plain sight. The impact of the First World War on New Zealanders was immense its legacy can be seen all around us today. Encyclopedia of Actuarial Science, 3 Volume Set Jozef L. Teugels, Bjørn Sundt, 2004-10-29. The Encyclopedia of Actuarial Science presents a timely and comprehensive body of knowledge designed to serve as an essential reference for the actuarial profession and all related business and financial activities as well as researchers and students in actuarial science and related areas. Drawing on the experience of leading international editors and authors from industry and academic research the encyclopedia provides an authoritative exposition of both quantitative methods and practical aspects of actuarial science and insurance. The cross disciplinary nature of the work is reflected not only in its coverage of key concepts from business, economics, risk, probability theory and statistics but also by the inclusion of supporting topics such as demography, genetics, operations research and informatics. The Saturday Review of Politics, Literature, Science and Art, 1872. The Northwestern
