concepts and debates in the field Political Culture and Media Genre K. Richardson, K. Parry, J. Corner, 2012-11-13 Exploring the forms and meanings of mediated politics beyond the news cycle this book encompasses genres drawn from television radio the press and the internet assessing their individual and collective contribution to contemporary political culture through textual analysis and thematic review Online Evaluation of Creativity and the Arts Hiesun Cecilia Suhr, 2014-08-21 Social media have dramatically popularized practices of evaluation especially of cultural products and artistic expressions The practices of liking and rating any shared contents such as music to blogs film videos photographs to artwork and performances are ubiquitous in today's digital environments As a result creative producers are increasingly developing reputations and careers through a complex blend of online social reputation management and distribution platforms and more longstanding forms of marketing channels and professional evaluation In this context Online Evaluation of Creativity and the Arts seeks to examine the newly emerging forms of evaluation such as contests competitions ranking commenting liking and rating which are taking place in digital environments In doing so this book investigates the criteria and assessment practices tied to the evaluation of creativity and artistic works and further questions what is at stake when digital environments heighten the role of amateur and peer criticism to the level of expert critiques While exploring potential informal learning opportunities and offering incisive critiques on the emerging norms and standards of evaluation the essays in this book cover a wide range of artistic and creative practices Restricted Access Elizabeth Ellcessor, 2016-03-29 How reconsidering digital media and participatory cultures from the standpoint of disability allows for a full understanding of accessibility While digital media can offer many opportunities for civic and cultural participation this technology is not equally easy for everyone to use Hardware software and cultural expectations combine to make some technologies an easier fit for some bodies than for others A YouTube video without closed captions or a social network site that is incompatible with a screen reader can restrict the access of users who are hard of hearing or visually impaired Often people with disabilities require accommodation assistive technologies or other forms of aid to make digital media accessible useable for them Restricted Access investigates digital media accessibility the processes by which media is made usable by people with particular needs and argues for the necessity of conceptualizing access in a way that will enable greater participation in all forms of mediated culture Drawing on disability and cultural studies Elizabeth Ellcessor uses an interrogatory framework based around issues of regulation use content form and experience to examine contemporary digital media Through interviews with policy makers and accessibility professionals popular culture and archival materials and an ethnographic study of internet use by people with disabilities Ellcessor reveals the assumptions that undergird contemporary technologies and participatory cultures Restricted Access makes the crucial point that if digital media open up opportunities for individuals to create and participate but that technology only facilitates the participation of those who are already privileged then its progressive potential remains unrealized Engagingly written with powerful examples Ellcessor demonstrates the importance of alternate uses marginalized voices and invisible innovations in the context of disability identities to push us to rethink digital media accessibility

China Online Peter Marolt, David Kurt Herold, 2014-10-30 The Chinese internet is driving change across all facets of social life and scholars have grown mindful that online and offline spaces have become interdependent and inseparable dimensions of social political economic and cultural activity This book showcases the richness and diversity of Chinese cyberspaces conceptualizing online and offline China as separate but inter connected spaces in which a wide array of people and groups act and interact under the gaze of a seemingly monolithic authoritarian state The cyberspaces comprising online China are understood as spaces for interaction and negotiation that influence offline China The book argues that these spaces allow their users greater freedoms despite ubiquitous control and surveillance by the state authorities The book is a sequel to the editors earlier work Online Society in China Creating Celebrating and Instrumentalising the Online Carnival Routledge 2011

Theorizing Cultural Work Mark Banks, Rosalind Gill, Stephanie Taylor, 2014-04-11 In recent years cultural work has engaged the interest of scholars from a broad range of social science and humanities disciplines The debate in this turn to cultural work has largely been based around evaluating its advantages and disadvantages its freedoms and its constraints its informal but precarious nature the inequalities within its global workforce and the blurring of work life boundaries leading to self exploitation While academic critics have persuasively challenged more optimistic accounts of converged worlds of creative production the critical debate on cultural work has itself leant heavily towards suggesting a profoundly new confluence of forces and effects Theorizing Cultural Work instead views cultural work through a specifically historicized and temporal lens to ask what novelty can we actually attach to current conditions and precisely what relation does cultural work have to social precedent The contributors to this volume also explore current transformations and future s of work within the cultural and creative industries as they move into an uncertain future This book challenges more affirmative and proselytising industry and academic perspectives and the pervasive cult of novelty that surrounds them to locate cultural work as an historically and geographically situated process It will be of interest to students and scholars of sociology cultural studies human geography urban studies and industrial relations as well as management and business studies cultural and economic policy and development government and planning
