In Pursuit of World-Class Universities Marcelo Rabossi, K.M. Joshi, Saeed Paivandi, 2018-03-10 The pursuit to construct world class universities is an ongoing global obsession across the world which lays emphasis on the development of competitive higher education and research systems as core national economic approach The portrayal world class is more contextual rather than absolute the expression world class university has an irrefutable cachet There is no solo clear cut definition of what organises a world class university WCU but there are few common attributes that majority of the experts point towards The three attributes stated by Philip Altbach and Jamil Salmi that focus on a high concentration of talent abundant resources and favourable governance have been widely discussed in writings and practice Both in developing and developed countries policymakers and higher education leaders are attempting to identify and outline their desires and plans aimed at achieving global ranking for their university universities Despite condemnation of the methodology the choice of indicators and weightings and the reliability and quality of data used for comparing performance the obsession for constructing world class universities has increased over the period of time But how much do we really discern or comprehend regarding the ranking systems What do the rankings really measure Do rankings measure the quality and help in attaining the broad assignment of higher education Does the competition as outcome of ranking raise standards Is the ranking system an apposite instrument to frame higher education policies This edited volume tries to look at the concept of world class universities in milieu of different countries of the world and explore their experiences either in existing WCUs or constructing WCU or attempting to create WCU The country based chapters show differentiated paths of achievements and their approach towards the concept of WCU Software

Classroom Connect Newsletter, 2002

Failure to Connect Jane M. Healy, 1999-07-13 In this comprehensive practical and unsettling look at computers in children's lives Jane M Healy Ph D questions whether computers are really helping or harming children's development Once a bedazzled enthusiast of educational computing but now a troubled skeptic Dr Healy examines the advantages and drawbacks of computer use for kids at home and school exploring its effects on children's health creativity brain development and social and emotional growth Today the Federal Government allocates scarce educational funding to wire every classroom to the Internet software companies churn out educational computer programs even for preschoolers and school administrators cut funding and space for books the arts and physical education to make room for new computer hardware It is past the time to address these issues Many parents and even some educators have been sold on the idea that computer literacy is as important as reading and math Those who haven't hopped on the techno bandwagon are left wondering whether they are shortchanging their children's education or their students' futures Few people stop to consider that computers used incorrectly may do far more harm than good New technologies can be valuable educational tools when used in age appropriate ways by properly trained teachers But too often schools budget insufficiently for teacher training and technical support Likewise studies suggest that few parents know how to properly assist children's computer learning much computer time at home may be wasted time drawing children away from other developmentally important activities such as reading hobbies or creative play Moreover Dr Healy finds that much so called learning software is more edutainment than educational teaching students more about impulsively pointing and clicking for some trivial goal than about how to think to communicate to imagine or to solve problems Some software used without careful supervision may also have the potential to interrupt a child's internal motivation to learn Failure to Connect is the first book to link children's technology use to important new findings about stages of child development and brain maturation which are clearly explained throughout It illustrates through dozens of concrete examples and guidelines how computers can be used successfully with children of different age groups as supplements to classroom curricula as research tools or in family projects Dr Healy issues strong warnings however against too early computer use recommending little or no exposure before age seven when the brain is primed to take on more abstract challenges She also lists resources for reliable reviews of child oriented software suggests questions parents should ask when their children are using computers in school and discusses when and how to manage computer use at home Finally she offers a thoughtful look at the question of which skills today's children will really need for success in a technological future and how they may best acquire them Based on years of research into learning and hundreds of hours of interviews and observations with school administrators teachers parents and students Failure to Connect is a timely and eye opening examination of the central questions we must confront as technology increasingly influences the way we educate our children

Engage, Connect, Protect Angelou Ezeilo, 2019-11-12 Building environmental strength through a diversity of youth Engage Connect Protect explodes the myth that environmental issues are primarily of interest to wealthy white communities Revealing the deep and abiding interest that African American Latino and Native American communities many of whom live in degraded and polluted parts of the country have in our collective environment Engage Connect Protect is part eye opening critique of the cultural divide in environmentalism part biography of a leading social entrepreneur and part practical toolkit for engaging diverse youth It covers Why communities of color are largely unrecognized in the environmental movement How to bridge the cultural divide and activate a new generation of environmental stewards A curriculum for engaging diverse youth and young adults through culturally appropriate methods and activities Resources for connecting mainstream America to organizations working with diverse youth within environmental projects training and employment Engage Connect Protect is a wake up call for businesses activists educators
