The College Affordability Crisis Laurie Collier Hillstrom, 2020-11-06 This volume provides a comprehensive and evenhanded overview of the escalating college affordability crisis in the United States It explains how higher education became so expensive and explores the implications of high college loan debt for students and American society The 21st Century Turning Point series is a one stop resource for understanding the people and events changing America today Each volume provides readers with a clear authoritative and unbiased understanding of a single issue or event that is driving national debate about our country s leaders institutions values and priorities This particular volume is devoted to the issue of the rising cost of higher education in the United States The expense of pursuing a college degree has become so high for so many students in fact that the country is experiencing what many educators economists parents and students describe as a college affordability crisis This work provides an accessible accurate account of the factors driving this trend including dramatic reductions in higher education spending by states for profit colleges predatory unscrupulous and lightly regulated student loan service companies and spiraling spending by colleges and universities competing to attract students Student Loans and the Dynamics of Debt Brad Hershbein, Kevin M. Hollenbeck, 2015-02-23 The papers included in this volume represent the most current research and knowledge available about student loans and repayment It serves as a valuable reference for researchers and policymakers who seek a deeper understanding of how why and which students borrow for their postsecondary education how this borrowing may affect later decisions and what measures can help borrowers repay their loans successfully The History of College Affordability in the United States from Colonial Times to the Cold War Thomas Adam, 2020-10-13 This book examines how tuition and student loans became an accepted part of college costs in the first half of the twentieth century The author argues that college was largely free to nineteenth century college students since local and religious communities donors and the state agreed to pay the tuition bill with the expectation that the students would serve society upon graduation College education was essentially considered a public good This arrangement ended after 1900 The increasing secularization and professionalization of college education as well as changes in the socio economic composition of the student body which included more and more students from well off families caused educators college administrators and donors to argue that students pursued a college degree for their own advancement and therefore should be made to pay for it Students were expected to pay tuition themselves and to take out student loans in order to fund their education Federal Direct Student Loans United States. Congress. Senate. Committee on Labor and Human Resources, 1992 This document provides testimony prepared statements articles publications and other materials concerning the issue of augmenting current student financial assistance programs with the addition of direct student loans Self Reliance Loans and examines responsible ways in which the federal government should move in this direction Among the persons providing testimony are the following U S Senators Bill Bradley New Jersey Edward M Kennedy Massachusetts Orrin

Congress. House. Committee on Education and Labor,2008      Profile. United States Department of Defense ,1998      Human Capital Formation and Economic Growth in Asia and the Pacific Wendy Dobson,2013-07-18 The entire planet looks to Asian and other emerging markets to sustain growth momentum as traditional markets in the USA and Europe struggle with the slow and arduous processes of deleveraging after the global financial crisis At the same time there is growing recognition in Asia that the sources of growth must shift to sustain their own growth momentum in the years ahead Heavy reliance on the region's high savings rates and plentiful supplies of low cost labour will have to shift towards increasing the human capital embodied in more educated and skilled labour forces capable of contributing to productivity growth and innovation as future drivers of growth Human Capital Formation and Economic Growth in Asia and the Pacific focuses on why and how countries are making this shift The demographic transition is shown to be a significant factor as ageing populations in Japan South Korea and China manage declining growth in the labour force by stepping up investments in education and by changing policies and institutions Lessons to be learned from these experiences by more youthful populations in Southeast Asia are explored In addition attention is paid to the consequences of cross border differentials in technical knowledge and the quantity and quality of human capital Several implications for public policy and for international cooperation on human capital issues in the Asian region are identified The chapters in this volume are edited versions of papers presented at the 35th Pacific Trade and Development conference held in Vancouver Canada in June 2012 The conference goal was to better understand how governments and business in Asia and the Pacific can apply the key insight that one of the reasons economies grow is because of human capital formation the quality and diversity of the labour force are augmented not just because the labour force grows in size Students of Asia s growth prospects will find several aspects of this volume of particular value It includes chapters on the big picture conceptual and measurement issues on country experiences in meeting the imperatives of the demographic transition and investing in education and skills training and on country experiences with attracting foreign knowledge and the supply and recruitment of skills across borders in Asia and the Pacific Policymakers will also find useful the discussions of policy implications and the menu of issues requiring intergovernmental cooperation within the Asian region
