Training and Practice for Modern Day Archaeologists John H. Jameson,James Eogan,2012-12-09 In recent years an important and encouraging development in the practice of archaeology and historical preservation has been the markedly increased number of collaborations among archaeologists educators preservation planners and government managers to explore new approaches to archaeological and heritage education and training to accommodate globalization and the realities of the 21st century worldwide But what is the collective experience of archaeologists and cultural heritage specialists in these arenas Should we be encouraged or discouraged by national and international trends In an attempt to answer these questions this volume examines and gives representational examples of the respective approaches and roles of government universities and the private sector in meeting the educational training needs and challenges of practicing archaeologists today

Video Surveillance of Nesting Birds Christine Ann Ribic,2012-05-13 Until recently inferring identities of predators and monitoring cryptic behaviors at the nest was time consuming often with anecdotal results No more Video nest surveillance so aptly revealed in this volume has ushered in a new era of data collection that allows field workers to link environmental factors with such aspects as the temporal dynamics of predator communities in relation to what the birds are doing at their nests thus removing much of the guesswork of earlier studies Spencer G Sealy University of Manitoba Video Surveillance of Nesting Birds shatters earlier beliefs about how birds interact with nest predators Much of what we thought we knew about nesting and its hazards was flat out wrong as authors in this book discovered by using modern technology in the field As simple as we would like our models of animal behavior to be this book shows that reality is far more complex and nuanced Douglas H Johnson University of Minnesota
