Natural Resources, Committee on Science Breakthroughs 2030: A Strategy for Food and Agricultural Research, 2019-03-21

For nearly a century scientific advances have fueled progress in U S agriculture to enable American producers to deliver safe and abundant food domestically and provide a trade surplus in bulk and high value agricultural commodities and foods Today the U S food and agricultural enterprise faces formidable challenges that will test its long term sustainability competitiveness and resilience On its current path future productivity in the U S agricultural system is likely to come with trade offs The success of agriculture is tied to natural systems and these systems are showing signs of stress even more so with the change in climate More than a third of the food produced is unconsumed an unacceptable loss of food and nutrients at a time of heightened global food demand Increased food animal production to meet greater demand will generate more greenhouse gas emissions and excess animal waste The U S food supply is generally secure but is not immune to the costly and deadly shocks of continuing outbreaks of food borne illness or to the constant threat of pests and pathogens to crops livestock and poultry U S farmers and producers are at the front lines and will need more tools to manage the pressures they face Science Breakthroughs to Advance Food and Agricultural Research by 2030 identifies innovative emerging scientific advances for making the U S food and agricultural system more efficient resilient and sustainable This report explores the availability of relatively new scientific developments across all disciplines that could accelerate progress toward these goals It identifies the most promising scientific breakthroughs that could have the greatest positive impact on food and agriculture and that are possible to achieve in the next decade by 2030
