Artificial Intelligence in Design '96 John S. Gero, Fay Sudweeks, 1996-05-31 The chapters in this volume are from the Fourth International Conference on Artificial Intelligence in Design held in June 1996 in Stanford California. They represent the state of the art and the cutting edge of research and development in this field. They are of particular interest to researchers, developers and users of computer systems in design. This volume demonstrates both the breadth and depth of artificial intelligence in design and points the way forward for our understanding of design as a process and for the development of computer based tools to aid designers. The chapters describe advances in both theory and application in the following areas: Case based design, Conceptual design, creativity and innovation in design, Design objects, Design spaces, Distributed design, Genetic algorithms, Genetic programming in design, Grammars in design, Learning in design, Representations in design, Reuse of designs, Rules, Models and theories in design, Layout planning in design. Artificial Intelligence in Design '91 John S. Gero, 1991. Artificial Intelligence in Design '91 is a collection of 47 papers from the First International Conference on Artificial Intelligence in Design held at Edinburgh in June 1991. The papers in this book are grouped into 13 headings starting with a background of AI design systems and to which extent AI that results from being used as a planning tool be applied to quality oriented design processes in architecture. A constraint driven approach to object oriented design is also shown on real world objects. The use of CADSYN in the structural design of buildings is examined along with design dependent knowledge and design independent knowledge. Discussions on empowering designers with integrated design environments are given whereby design objects may be retrieved from catalogues without requiring users to form queries. Mention is given to automated adjustment of parameter values frequently used in computer routine applications. The book also introduces the Computer Aided Design CAD as applied to architecture. Design representation using data models, non monotonic reasoning in design and the cognitive aspects of design using empirical studies are discussed. Topics of the industrial applications of AI in design such as the needed steps to develop a successful AI based tool and a review of the Castlemain Project and telecommunication distribution networks follow. This book is suitable for programmers, computer science students and architects and engineers who use computers in their line of work. Artificial Intelligence in Engineering D. Sriram, R. A. A. Campbell, 1985 Artificial Intelligence in Design '94 John S. Gero, Fay Sudweeks, 1994. Design is an important research topic in engineering and architecture since it is not only a means of change but also one of the keystones of economic competitiveness and the fundamental precursor to manufacturing. However, our understanding of design as a process and our ability to model it are still very limited. The development of computational models founded on the artificial intelligence paradigm has provided an impetus for much of current design research, both computational and cognitive. Notwithstanding their immaturity, noticeable advances have been made both in extending our understanding of design and in developing tools based on that understanding. Artificial Intelligence Abstracts, 1989
