

Monologue

Zlurp! Greetings, General Zlorb. I am calling on radio 257. I have information about that planet called "Earth". At your request, I have flown down here in my spaceship. I must say, this is a cold and dreary place. Nothing like our planet, Kerplin. As soon as I arrived here, my vision was clouded by buildings several storeys high. The wind was (and still is) frightfully strong, so I borrowed a coat which was in the window of one of the largest buildings. All the humans were very angry at me, and chased me, for some reason, but I obviously outran them. After that encounter, I turned on my invisibility suit, as I decided it was best not to alarm any more humans, who were all giving me dirty looks as it was. So then, I entered a building with a sign on it that said "McDonalds". I wish I had known at that moment how horrible it smelled, but unfortunately the Ritober species does not have a nose. And so, I swiped a tray of food from a man's table while he wasn't looking. On it was a delectable looking... something squished between two pieces of... something. When I took a bite though, I spit it out almost immediately! It was foul, disgusting, the worst thing I'd ever tasted. I had such a horrible taste in my mouth, so I had a sip of the drink next to it. Alas, that was worse, if that was even possible. For the rest of the day, I had a terrible stomach ache. Soon enough, it got dark and so I took refuge in a dog's kennel that was in a nearby garden. The dog didn't mind. And well, now it's morning. Also, did I mention I broke my spaceship? They don't have a landing area here. Anyway I would really appreciate it if you could send someone down to take me back home. Thank you.

When you scan Part One Play Synopses and Analyses you come across an entry for The Middle of the Night by Paddy Chayefsky. This is what you see: The Middle of the Night by Paddy Chayefsky, Samuel French. Synopsis: A kindly 53-year-old widower falls in love with a 23-year-old woman who is unhappily married to a musician. No one in their circle of acquaintances approves of this union, but their love is true. Analysis: Excellent human drama frequently touching. Actors who play the widower need to have a good feel for New York City/Brooklyn speech patterns. This sensitivity isn't as essential for the part of the woman. All levels. Scenes: Monologues: Male Monologues: 1 Female: Female Scenes: 1 Male: Female Scenes: 2. In addition to basic information about the play, author, and publisher, the entry provides you with the story line, a critique of the play, and the number of audition-worthy monologues and scenes it contains. If the description of this particular play piques your interest, your next step is to turn to Part Six, Male/Female Scenes, for specifics about the selection. This is what you'll see there: The Middle of the Night by Paddy Chayefsky, Samuel French. Drama. Act II, Scene 2, pp. 40-44. The Manufacturer, 53, and The 23. After an unsatisfactory attempt at lovemaking, The Manufacturer feels awful that he wasn't able to perform. Usually, he is very understanding. He then asks her to marry him. The actor playing The Manufacturer must have a good feel for regional New York speech patterns. This skill is less critical for the actress playing The Start. The Manufacturer: I'm sorry, Betty. End. The Manufacturer: Oh, my sweet, I love you so much you don't know. If you change your mind tomorrow, I won't be angry with you. I won't lie to you, Betty. I'm afraid. This entry tells you what type of scene this is (dramatic), where you'll find the selection (act, scene, and page numbers), the length of the scene, the names and ages of the characters, the context in which the characters are speaking, and the first and last lines of the scene. If the material seems appropriate, all you have to do is get a copy of the play and get to work. Because The Ultimate Scene and Monologue Sourcebook enables you to make informed decisions about the suitability of more than 1,000 monologues and scenes, which you can find easily through the book's extensive cross indexes, you'll gain a critical edge in the auditioning process.
