Postcolonial Identities in Central Asian and Caucasian Literature Tamar Koplatadze, 2025-10-31 Decoloniality has emerged as one of the most prominent subjects of public and academic debates of our time bringing to the fore the post colonial perspectives of previously underrepresented groups Interest is similarly growing around the countries of the

Caucasus and Central Asia which have been part of the Russian and Soviet empires and are now defining their independent post Soviet and decolonial identities Following the dissolution of the Soviet Union literature has become a key platform for exploring what it means to be post Soviet and the extent to which post Soviet identity is a post colonial one It is at this point that this monograph intervenes as the first major study to examine post Soviet literature from the Caucasus and Central Asia and to employ postcolonial theory as its methodology Authors from Georgia Armenia Azerbaijan Kazakhstan Kyrgyzstan Tajikistan and Uzbekistan are placed in dialogue with each other to establish how they respond to the post Soviet transition and negotiate their postcolonial identities in their fiction These include Narine Abgaryan Hamid Ismailov Nana Ekvimishvili Mariam Petrosyan Bibish Lilya Kalaus the SHTAB collective and others Building and expanding on the theoretical tools of postcolonial and decolonial studies the enquiry covers four core topics trauma immigration NGOs and utopias The author argues that post colonial theory is crucial for understanding the current cultural developments in the Caucasus and Central Asia whose literatures are in many respects postcolonial on the level of the writers identity configurations and modes of representation

Media Representation of Migrants and Refugees Kir Elitaş, Serpil, 2024-06-17 The global narrative surrounding migrants refugees and people on the move is often fraught with biases misunderstandings and misrepresentations While crucial for informing public opinion media coverage can inadvertently perpetuate stereotypes fuel discrimination and distort realities This leads to a climate where migrants and refugees are often misunderstood marginalized and even targeted with hate speech Such narratives hinder efforts for inclusive societies and contribute to the polarization of public debates on migration Media Representation of Migrants and Refugees offers a comprehensive solution by bringing together interdisciplinary perspectives to examine and challenge prevailing media narratives critically By inviting scholars and practitioners from diverse fields such as Social Sciences Humanities Media Communications and Government the book aims to provide a nuanced understanding of the complex interplay between media representations and the lived experiences of migrants This book is a vital resource for academics researchers policymakers and media professionals seeking to understand and address the challenges of media representation in the context of migration

Migration, Homeland, and Belonging in Eurasia Cynthia J. Buckley, Blair A. Ruble, Erin Trough Hofmann, 2008-09-09 Migration a force throughout the world has special meanings in the former Soviet lands Soviet successor countries each with strong ethnic associations have pushed some racial groups out and pulled others back home Forcible relocations of the Stalin era were reversed and areas previously closed for security reasons were opened to newcomers These countries represent a fascinating mix of the motivations and achievements of migration in Russia and Central Asia Migration Homeland and Belonging in Eurasia examines patterns of migration and sheds new light on government interests migrant motivations historical precedents and community identities The contributors come from a variety of disciplines political science sociology history and geography Initial chapters offer overall assessments of contemporary migration debates in the region Subsequent chapters feature individual case studies that highlight continuity and change in migration debates in imperial and Soviet periods Several chapters treat specific topics in Central Eurasia and the Far East such as the movement of ethnic Kazakhs from Mongolia to Kazakhstan and the continuing attractiveness to migrants of supposedly uneconomical cities in Siberia

Globalizing Central Asia Marlene Laruelle, Sebastien Peyrouse, 2015-02-12 In this global era Central Asia must be understood in both geo economic and geopolitical terms The region s natural resources compel the attention of rivalrous great powers and ambitious internal factions The local regimes are caught between the need for international collaborations to valorize these riches and the need to maintain control over them in the interest of state sovereignty Russia and China dominate the horizon with other global players close behind meanwhile neighboring countries are fractious and unstable with real potential for contagion This pathbreaking introduction to Central Asia in contemporary international economic and political context answers the needs of both academic and professional audiences and is suitable for course adoption

Claiming and Making Muslim Worlds Jeanine Elif Dağyeli, Claudia Ghrawi, Ulrike Freitag, 2021-07-05 To what extent can Islam be localized in an increasingly interconnected world The contributions to this volume investigate different facets of Muslim lives in the context of increasingly dense transregional connections highlighting how the circulation of ideas about Muslimness contributed to the shaping of specific ideas about what constitutes Islam and its role in society and politics Infrastructural changes have prompted the intensification of scholarly and trade networks prompted the circulation of new literary genres or shaped stereotypical images of Muslims This in turn had consequences in widely differing fields such as self representation and governance of Muslims The contributions in this volume explore this issue in geographical contexts ranging from South Asia to Europe and the US Coming from the disciplines of history anthropology religious studies literary studies and political science the authors collectively demonstrate the need to combine a translocal perspective with very specific local and historical constellations The book complicates conventional academic divisions and invites to think in historically specific translocal contexts The End of the Refugee Cycle? Richard Black, Khalid Koser, 1999 Includes statistics Lied und

Constructing the Uzbek State Marlene Laruelle, 2017-12-20 Over the past three decades Uzbekistan has attracted the attention of the academic and policy communities because of its geostrategic importance its critical role in shaping or unshaping Central Asia as a region its economic and trade potential and its demographic weight every other Central Asian being Uzbek Uzbekistan s political social and cultural evolutions largely exemplify the transformations of the region as a whole And yet more than 25 years after the collapse of the Soviet Union evaluating Uzbekistan s post Soviet transformation remains complicated Practitioners and scholars have seen access to sources data and fieldwork progressively restricted since the early 2000s The death of President Islam Karimov in power for a quarter of century in late 2016 reopened the future of the country offering it more room for evolution To better grasp the challenges facing post Karimov Uzbekistan this volume reviews nearly three decades of independence In the first part it discusses the political construct of Uzbekistan under Karimov based on the delineation between the state the elite and the people and the tight links between politics and economy The second section of the volume delves into the social and cultural changes related to labor migration and one specific trigger the difficulties to reform agriculture The third part explores the place of religion in Uzbekistan both at the state level and in society while the last part looks at the renegotiation of collective identities

Culture, Ethnicity and Migration After Communism Anton Popov, 2016-06-10 This book addresses the issue of emerging transnationalism in the conditions of post socialism through focusing on migrants identity as a social construction resulting from their experience of the transnational circuit of culture as well as from post Soviet shifts in political and economic conditions in their home regions Anton Popov draws upon ethnographic research conducted among Greek transnational migrants living on the Black Sea coast and in the North Caucasus regions of Russia who have become involved in extensive cross border migration between the former Soviet Union the Russian Federation Kazakhstan and Georgia and Greece as well as Cyprus It is estimated that more than 150 000 former Soviet citizens of Greek origin have resettled in Greece since the late 1980s. Yet many of those who emigrate do not cut their connections with the home communities in Russia but instead establish their own transnational circuit of travel between Greece and Russia. This study demonstrates how migrants employ their ethnicity as symbolic capital available for investment in transnational migration. Simultaneously they rework their practices of family networking, property relations and political participation in a way which strengthens their attachment to the local territory. The findings presented in the book imply that the social identities, economic strategies, political practices and cultural representation of the Russia's Pontic Greeks are all deeply embedded in the shifting social and cultural landscape of post-Soviet Russia and extensively influenced by the global movement of ideas, goods and people.
