longer binary string called the codeword so that if a small number of bits of the codeword are flipped the resulting string does not look like any other codeword The maximum number of errors that the code is guaranteed to detect denoted d is a central parameter in its design A basic property of such a code is that if the number of errors that occur is known to be smaller than $d/2$ the message is determined uniquely This poses a computational problem called the decoding problem

compute the message from a corrupted codeword when the number of errors is less than $d/2$ Health Insurance Today - E-Book Janet I.
