Theory and Practice of Specialised Online Dictionaries

Pedro A. Fuertes-Olivera, Sven Tarp, 2014-09-23 This book is the first comprehensive monograph on the Function Theory of Lexicography which originated at the Aarhus School of Business Aarhus University Function Theory considers dictionaries to be tools that are constructed for assisting specific users with punctual needs in specific usage situations e.g. communicative oriented situations and cognitive oriented situations The book's main focus is on defending the independent academic status of lexicography and its corollary The process of designing compiling and updating specialised online dictionaries needs a theoretical framework that addresses general and specific aspects The former are common to all types of information tools the latter are mainly dependent on the media for which the information tool is constructed and their specific target users This book offers both aspects and moves from the highest level of abstraction to very detailed aspects of lexicographic work

e.g. how to convert an originally conceived polyfunctional online dictionary into several monofunctional usage based ones. The book illustrates that the theory and the methodology currently used by advocates of the Function Theory of Lexicography offers better results than other approaches and therefore makes its case for proposing the Function Theory for terminological terminographical work. A Sociolinguistic History of British English Lexicography Heming Yong, Jing Peng, 2021-09-15

A Sociolinguistic History of British English Lexicography traces the evolution of British English dictionaries from their earliest roots to the end of the 20th century by adopting both sociolinguistic and lexicographical perspectives. It attempts to break out of the limits of the dictionary ontology paradigm and set British English dictionary making and research against a broader background of socio-cultural observations thus relating the development of English lexicography to changes in English accomplishments in English linguistics, social and cultural progress and advances in science and technology. It unfolds a vivid coherent and complete picture of how English dictionary making develops from its archetype to the prescriptive, the historical, the descriptive and finally to the cognitive model, how it interrelates to the course of the development of a nation's culture and the historical growth of its lexicographical culture as well as how English lexicography spreads from British English to other major regional varieties through inheritance, innovation and self-perfection. This volume will be of interest to students and academics of English lexicography, English linguistics and world English lexicography. Computer Books and Serials in Print, 1985

Reading with Writing in Mind Nancy Charron, Marilyn Fenton, 2023-08-16. Reading with Writing in Mind meets the needs of school districts and teachers by providing rationale and activities that increase students' literacy skills. Relevant reading and writing standards are aligned with Common Core Standards and preface each chapter's activities. Using Online Dictionaries Carolin Müller-Spitzer, 2014-02-27 Until now there has been very little research into the use of online dictionaries In contrast the market for online dictionaries is increasing both for academic lexicography and for commercial lexicography with sales figures for printed reference works in continual decline This has led to a demand for reliable empirical information on how online dictionaries are actually being used and how they could be made more user friendly The volume Using Online Dictionaries makes a substantial contribution to closing this research gap It is divided into four parts The first part contains articles on fundamental issues a research review of the empirical studies on digital dictionaries which have already been carried out and a brief methodological guideline for lexicographical researchers who are interested in conducting their own empirical research The second part contains the results of two studies that focus on general questions about the use of online dictionaries It presents empirical data on contexts of dictionary use on expectations and demands regarding online dictionaries Furthermore innovative features such as the use of multimedia elements or the option of a user adaptive interface and questions of design were assessed empirically The third part of this volume comprises more specific studies of online dictionaries an eye tracking study evaluating the new web design of the dictionary portal OWID and a log file study which tries to get to the bottom of the following question Do dictionary users look up frequent words or put differently is there a connection between how often a word is looked up and how often it appears in a corpus In the last chapter of this thematic section the question of how users judge the combination of a written paraphrase and an additional illustration in illustrated online dictionaries is addressed The last part focuses on the use of monolingual dictionaries in particular the German online dictionary lexiko In this context two online questionnaire based studies were carried out The empirical studies were conducted in the form of online surveys combining questionnaires and experimental elements and in the form of laboratory studies using eye tracking technology as well as using observational methods such as log file analyses Regarding the comprehensive research framework this volume can be relevant to lexicographers metalexicographers and linguists who are interested in the use of online dictionaries and in the development and exploration of lexicographical data for the internet as well as linguists interested in empirical methods It addresses a broad expert audience by presenting an academic subject which is currently the focus of much discussion
