The Liberalization of Transportation Services in the EU and Turkey Sübidey Togan, 2016-06-16 Transport costs have been and still are an important component of trade costs which are one the major determinants of the volume of trade and thus of gross domestic product GDP and GDP growth Studies show that two of the main determinants of transport costs are regulatory frameworks in transport sectors and transport infrastructure The productivity and competitiveness of goods and services firms depends largely on access to low cost and high quality transport services and those services have a powerful influence on economic growth Countries commit themselves to increasing the efficiency of transport services which can largely be achieved through increased competition and hence through liberalization of transport sectors Since barriers to trade in transport services are typically regulatory in nature this book provides a thorough discussion of international regional and country specific rules and regulations in those sectors Concentrating on the EU and Turkey in particular it considers rules and regulations in transport sectors It shows that economic liberalization pursued unilaterally multilaterally or regionally has beneficial effects for Turkey and that the benefits from such liberalization are substantial Furthermore the volume shows that transport infrastructure is an important determinant of exports and hence GDP and GDP growth

Writing the Ottomans Anders Ingram, 2015-07-24 Histories of the Turks were a central means through which English authors engaged in intellectual and cultural terms with the Ottoman Empire its advance into Europe following the capture of Constantinople 1454 and its continuing central European power up to the treaty of Karlowitz 1699 Writing the Ottomans examines historical writing on the Turks in England from 1480 1700 It explores the evolution of this discourse from its continental roots and its development in response to moments of military crisis such as the Long War of 1593 1606 and the War of the Holy League 1683 1699 as well as Anglo Ottoman trade and diplomacy throughout the seventeenth century From the writing of central authors such as Richard Knolles and Paul Rycart to lesser known names it reads English histories of the Turks in their intellectual religious political economic and print contexts and analyses their influence on English perceptions of the Ottoman world

The Factory-Free Economy Lionel Fontagné, Ann

Harrison, 2017-03-01 De industrialization accelerated by the financial crisis is a long term process The comparative advantage of emerging economies shifted towards more advanced goods and their growing populations commanded an increasing share in global demand This shift towards a factory free economy in high income countries has drawn the attention of policy makers in North America and Europe Some politicians have articulated alarming views initiating mercantilist or beggar thy neighbour cost competitiveness policies Yet companies that concentrate research and design innovations at home but no longer have any factories there may be the norm in the future This volume proposes an economic analysis of this phenomenon and includes 11 contributions which complement each other and tackle the problem from different angles The evidence in this book suggests that de industrialization is a process that happens over time in all countries even China One implication is that criticism of China is not likely to provide a solution to these long term trends Another implication is that the distinction between manufacturing and services is likely to become increasingly blurry More manufacturing firms are engaging in services activities and more wholesale firms are engaging in manufacturing One optimistic perspective suggests that industrial country firms may be able to exploit the high value added and skill intensive activities associated with design and innovation as well as distribution which are all components of the global value chain for manufacturing Although this ongoing transformation of the industrial economies may be consistent with evolving comparative advantage it has significant short run costs and requires far sighted investments These include the costs to workers who are caught in the shift from an industrial to a service economy and the need to invest in new infrastructure and education to prepare coming generations for their changing roles Optimal Redistributive Taxation Matti

Tuomala, 2016 Tax systems raise large amounts of revenue for funding public sector s activities and tax transfer policy together with public provision of education health care and social services play a crucial role in treating the symptoms and the causes of poverty The normative analysis is crucial for tax transfer design because it makes it possible to assess separately how changes in the redistributive criterion of the government and changes in the size of the behavioural responses to taxes and transfers affect the optimal tax transfer system Optimal tax theory provides a way of thinking rigorously about these trade offs Written primarily for graduate students and researchers this volume is intended as a textbook and research monograph connecting optimal tax theory to tax policy It comments on some policy recommendations of the Mirrlees Review and builds on the authors work on public economics optimal tax theory behavioural public economics and income inequality The book explains in depth the Mirrlees model and presents various extensions of it The first set of extensions considers changing the preferences for consumption and work behavioural economic modifications such as positional externalities prospect theory paternalism myopic behaviour and habit formation but also heterogeneous work preferences besides differences in earnings ability The second set of modifications concerns the objective of the government The book explains the differences in optimal redistributive tax systems when governments instead of maximising social welfare minimise poverty or maximise social welfare based on rank order or charitable conservatism social welfare functions The third set of extensions considers extending the Mirrlees income tax framework to allow for differential commodity taxes capital income taxation public goods provision public provision of private goods and taxation commodities that generate externalities The fourth set of extensions considers incorporating a number of important real word extensions such as tagging of tax schedules to certain groups of tax payers In all extensions the book illustrates the main mechanisms using advanced numerical simulations
