Once Upon a Time in Facilities Management Patricia McCarroll, John Hassard, 2024-09-23 What would the world of work look like if interpreted through the lens of the fairytale To answer this question Once Upon a Time in Facilities Management explores storied spaces and metaphorical archetypes in the study of business management and organization At its core the authors offer a diagnostic approach for the study of work organization that links management theory storytelling and the business imaginary An important empirical focus is also included that explores a business service rarely studied in the management literature Facilities Management FM a secondary service of non core and increasingly outsourced organizational functions An in depth appreciation of FM is provided that assesses the people practices and processes of the service in a study that also highlights the characteristic liminality of the sector s professional activities Emphasis is placed on illuminating the storytelling nature of the service using primarily the genre of fairytales to identify representational archetypes including queen shadow sage trickster adventurer and eternal child within FM s storied space In the process three central characters essentially modes of FM delivery are identified the professional consultant the external service provider and the in house function with these forming the structural basis of fairytales explaining the culture and symbolism of FM as a business service The authors conclude by extrapolating findings from the study to inform a discussion of the contributions of folkloric analysis to organization theory explicitly and our understanding of business and management practice more widely

Participatory Practice in Space, Place, and Service Design Kelly L. Anderson, Graham Cairns, 2022-10-18 Participatory Practice in Space Place and Service Design is premised on a belief in the importance of participatory practices in finding creative solutions to the plethora of problems we face today It argues that engaging professions with the public in mutual exploration analysis and creative thinking is essential It not only ensures better quality products places services and a greater sense of civic agency but also facilitates fuller access to them and the life opportunities they can unleash This book offers a uniquely varied perspective of the myriad ways in which participatory practices operate across disciplines and how they impact the worlds and communities we create and inhabit This book suggests that participatory practices are multi disciplinary and relevant in fields as diverse as design architecture education health care sustainability and community activism to name a few of those discussed here How do designed objects and environments affect wellness creativity learning and a sense of belonging How do products and services affect everyday experience and attitudes towards issues such as sustainability How does giving people a creative voice in their own education services and built environments open up their potential and strengthen identity and civic agency Addressing these questions requires a rethinking of relations between people objects and environments it demands attention to space place and services

Managing Organizational Ecologies Keith Alexander, Ilfryn Price, 2013-05-02 The term Facilities Management has become global but fraught with confusion as to what the term signifies For some notably in the USA Facilities Management remains a discipline of human ecology Elsewhere the term has become conflated with an alternative meaning providing or outsourcing the provision of various services essential to the operation of particular buildings This volume redresses that imbalance to remind Facilities Management of its roots presenting evidence of Facilities Management success stories that engage the wider objectives of the organizations they serve and engaging students scholars and critical practitioners of general management with an appreciation of the power and influence of physical space and its place in the theory and practice of organizations This book includes management perspectives from outside the field to ensure that the issues raised are seen in an organizational and management context informing debate within the Facilities Management fraternity It draws on human ecology and the perspective of the firm as itself an intra organizational ecology of social constructs The ecology of a firm is not restricted to the firm s boundaries It extends to wider relationships between the firm and its stakeholders including in an age of outsourced building services the Facilities Management supply chain This volume offers arguments and evidence that managing such constructs is a key role for Facilities Management and an important participant in the provision of truly usable spaces
