Greening the Global Economy Robert Pollin, 2015-11-13 A program for building a global clean energy economy while expanding job opportunities and economic well being In order to control climate change the International Panel on Climate Change IPCC estimates that greenhouse gas emissions will need to fall by about forty percent by 2030 Achieving the target goals will be highly challenging Yet in Greening the Global Economy economist Robert Pollin shows that they are attainable through steady large scale investments totaling about 1.5 percent of global GDP on an annual basis in both energy efficiency and clean renewable energy sources Not only that Pollin argues that with the right investments these efforts will expand employment and drive economic growth Drawing on years of research Pollin explores all aspects of the problem how much energy will be needed in a range of industrialized and developing economies what efficiency targets should be and what kinds of industrial policy will maximize investment and support private and public partnerships in green growth so that a clean energy transformation can unfold without broad subsidies All too frequently inaction on climate change is blamed on its potential harm to the economy Pollin shows greening the economy is not only possible but necessary global economic growth depends on it

Transition Erik Gawel,Sebastian Strunz,Paul Lehmann,Alexandra Purkus,2019-02-07 This book addresses the interactions between Germany s energy transition and the EU s energy policy framework It seeks to analyze the manifold connections between the prospects of the proclaimed Energy Union and the future of Germany s energy transition and identifies relevant lessons for the transformation at the EU level that can be learned from the case of Germany as a first mover of transforming energy systems towards renewables The various repercussions political economic and systemic from the national transition are explored within the EU context as it responds to the German transition taking into account both existing frictions and potential synergies between predominantly national sustainability policies and the EU s push towards harmonized policies within a common market The book s overall aim is to identify the most critical issues in order to avoid pitfalls and capitalize on opportunities      Challenges of European External Energy Governance with Emerging Powers Michèle Knodt,Nadine

Piefer,2016-03-03 In a multipolar world with growing demand for energy not least by Emerging Powers such as Brazil India China or South Africa BICS questions of EU external energy governance would at first hand appear to be a high priority Yet reality tells a different story the EU s geographical focus remains on adjacent countries in the European neighbourhood and on issues related to energy security Despite being Strategic Partners and engaging in energy dialogues it seems that the EU is lacking strategic vision and is not perceived as a major actor in energy cooperation with the BICS Thus political momentum for energy cooperation and joint governance of scarce resources is vanishing Resulting from three years of international interdisciplinary research cooperation among academics and practitioners in Europe and the BICS countries within a project funded by the Volkswagen Foundation this volume addresses one of the greatest global challenges Specific focus lies on the bilateral energy dialogues and Strategic Partnerships between the EU and Emerging Powers regarding bilateral inter and transnational energy cooperation Furthermore the analysis provides policy recommendations in order to tap the full potential of energy cooperation between the EU and Brazil India China and South Africa      Advanced Computing
