Understanding Genre and Medieval Romance K.S. Whetter, 2017-05-15 Unique in combining a comprehensive and comparative study of genre with a study of romance this book constitutes a significant contribution to ongoing critical debates over the definition of romance and the genre and artistry of Malory's Morte Darthur K S Whetter offers an original approach to these issues by prefacing a comprehensive study of romance with a wide ranging and historically diverse study of genre and genre theory In doing so Whetter addresses the questions of why and how romance might usefully be defined and how such an awareness of genre and the expectations that come with such awareness impact upon both our understanding of the texts themselves and of how they may have been received by their contemporary medieval audiences As an integral part the study Whetter offers a detailed examination of Sir Thomas Malory's Le Morte Darthur a text usually considered a straightforward romance but which Whetter argues should be re classified and reconsidered as a generic mixture best termed tragic romance This new classification is important in helping to explain a number of so called inconsistencies or puzzles in Malory's text and further elucidates Malory's artistry Whetter offers a powerful meditation upon genre romance and the Morte which will be of interest to faculty graduate students and undergraduates alike

Medieval Romance and Material Culture Nicholas Perkins, 2015 Studies of how the physical manifests itself in medieval romance and medieval romances as objects themselves Medieval romance narratives glitter with the material objects that were valued and exchanged in late medieval society lovers rings and warriors swords holy relics and desirable or corrupted bodies Romance however is also a genre in which such objects make meaning on numerous levels and not always in predictable ways These new essays examine from diverse perspectives how romances respond to material culture but also show how romance as a genre helps to constitute and transmit that culture Focusing on romances circulating in Britain and Ireland between the twelfth and sixteenth centuries individual chapters address such questions as the relationship between objects and protagonists in romance narrative the materiality of male and female bodies the interaction between visual and verbal representations of romance poetic form and manuscript textuality and how a nineteenth century edition of medieval romances provoked artists to homage and satire NICHOLAS PERKINS is Associate Professor and Tutor in English at St Hugh's College University of Oxford Contributors Siobhain Bly Calkin Nancy Mason Bradbury Aisling Byrne

The Religious Existentialists and the Redemption of Feeling Anthony Malagon, Abi Doukhan, 2019-06-27 Traditional philosophizing has generally depended upon reason as its primary access to truth Subjective experiences such as feelings the passions and emotions have typically been viewed as secondary to reason untrustworthy or both The Religious Existentialists and the Redemption of Feeling revisits how the movement of existentialism via the religious existentialists has contributed to a rethinking of the role of subjective experience in contrast to the rationalist and idealist traditions thus reframing the importance of feelings in general for the philosophical enterprise as a whole Through the considerations of a variety of thinkers this collection provides a fresh look at the contributions of twentieth century existentialists thereby re contextualizing the very notion of existentialism offering a powerful and genuine re evaluation of the significance of subjectivity and underscoring the continued relevance of the religious existentialists

Medieval Arthurian Epic and Romance William W. Kibler, R. Barton Palmer, 2014-08-21 This volume offers newly translated texts that exemplify the two most important traditions of Arthurian literature in the Middle Ages Encompassing such key works such as Lawman's Brut and Wace's Romance of Brut written in Middle English and Old French respectively the Arthurian Epic Tradition depends on Geoffrey of Monmouth's History of the Kings of Britain written in Latin Many modern readers are more familiar with Arthur and his fabled court as the centerpiece of a massive fictional tradition well represented in the second part of this volume including Chretien de Troyes's Story of the Grail The Quest of the Holy Grail and the Perlesvaus These selections emphasize the connection between secular and religious understandings of chivalry that is the most distinctive quality of medieval Arthurian romance Useful as a classroom text the volume provides material for a semester's worth of study Instructors considering this book for use in a course may request an examination copy here

Heroes and Anti-heroes in Medieval Romance Neil Cartlidge, 2012 Investigations into the heroic or not behaviour of the protagonists of medieval romance Medieval romances so insistently celebrate the triumphs of heroes and the discomfiture of villains that they discourage recognition of just how morally ambiguous antisocial or even downright sinister their protagonists can be and correspondingly of just how admirable or impressive their defeated opponents often are This tension between the heroic and the antiheroic makes a major contribution to the dramatic complexity of medieval romance but it is not an aspect of the genre that has been frequently discussed up until now Focusing on fourteen distinct characters and character types in medieval narrative this book illustrates the range of different ways in which the imaginative power and appeal of romance texts often depend on contradictions implicit in the very ideal of heroism Dr Neil Cartlidge is Lecturer in English at the University of Durham Contributors Neil Cartlidge Penny Eley David Ashurst Meg Lamont Laura Ashe Judith Weiss Gareth Griffith Kate McClune Nancy Mason Bradbury Ad Putter Robert Rouse Siobhain Bly Calkin James Wade Stephanie Vierick Gibbs Kamath
