Kentucky University Lowell H. Harrison, 2014-10-17 Most Hilltoppers believe that Western Kentucky University is unique. They take pride in its lovely campus, its friendly spirit, the loyalty of its alumni, and its academic and athletic achievements. But Western's development also illustrates a major trend in American higher education during the past century. Scores of other institutions have followed the Western pattern, growing from private normal school to state normal school to teachers college to general college, finally emerging as an important state university. Historian Lowell Harrison traces the Western story from the school's origin in 1875 to the January 1986 election of its seventh president. For much of its history, Western has been led by paternalistic presidents whose major battles have been with other state schools and parsimonious legislatures. In recent years, the presidents have been challenged by students and faculty who have demanded more active roles in university governance, and by a Board of Regents and the Council on Higher Education which have raised challenging new issues. Harrison's account of the institution's development is laced with anecdotes and vignettes of some of the school's interesting personalities: President Henry Hardin Cherry whose chapel talks convinced countless students that the Spirit Makes the Master; Uncle Ed Diddle whose flying towel and winning teams earned national basketball fame; Daddy Burton who could catch flies while lecturing; Miss Gabie Robertson who held students into the next class period; the lone Japanese student who was on campus during World War II. Harrison also recalls steamboat excursions, the Great Depression, and the Second World War, the astounding boom in enrollment and buildings in the 1960s, the period of student unrest, and the numerous fiscal crises that have beset the school. This is the story of an institution proud of its past and seeking to chart its course into the twenty-first century.

Notes and Queries, 1878 The Cultivator & Country Gentleman, 1869 No Country for Old Maids? Hannah August, 2015-08-07 Hannah August's intelligent and humane study illuminates, sometimes uncomfortably, the ways in which our demographics are changing and our attitudes are not. This is public intellection that is curious, rigorous, and highly relevant to our time.

Eleanor Catton. In 2013 there were over 66,000 more women between the ages of 25-49 living in New Zealand than there were men. This so-called man drought is a hot topic for journalists and academics alike who comment on how the situation might affect New Zealand women's chances of finding love. Yet they rarely stop to ask women their own opinions on the matter. In this BWB Text, Hannah August does just that, integrating interview material, statistics, and cultural commentary in order to demonstrate why we need to talk differently about the man drought.

Frontier Forts Under Fire Paul Williams, 2017-09-19 Fort William Henry and Fort Phil Kearny were both military outposts of the North American frontier. Both lasted but briefly, about two years from construction until their walls went up in flames. And both saw what were termed massacres by Indians outside their walls. This book reexamines the traumatic events at both forts. The Fort William Henry Massacre was condemned by both the British and the French as barbaric. Yet these European powers proved capable of similar crimes. The Fort Phil Kearny defeat, traditionally attributed to

Captain William Fetterman's having disobeyed orders has been scrutinized in recent years. Did the women present at that time write a distorted version of events? It would appear that his second in command, the rash Lieutenant George Grummond, led the charge over Lodge Trail Ridge. American Machinist, 1883 The Encyclopaedia Britannica, 1894 Sessional Papers of the Parliament of the Dominion of Canada Canada. Parliament, 1888 American-Vietnamese Relations in the Wake of War

Cécile Menétrey-Monchau, 2006-07-19 When the Vietnam War ended with the North Vietnamese capture of Saigon on April 30, 1975, 27 months after a cease-fire had been signed in Paris, the differences between the United States and Vietnam were far from being resolved. Mutual bitterness regarding the war remained. Newly unified Vietnam wanted normalization of relations and the subsequent economic reconstruction aid promised in the Paris Peace Accords. Understandably wary of such diplomatic relations, the United States requested information regarding soldiers listed as missing in action and assistance with the repatriation of military remains. A series of misconceptions and misunderstandings, as well as changes from a regional to a global U.S. foreign policy, left both countries bereft of an easy solution. This book describes the negotiations during the late Ford and early Carter administrations, 1975-1979, and discusses the repercussions the diplomatic stalemate had on the domestic and international politics of the United States and Vietnam, emphasizing the conflicting priorities and political goals of both countries at home and abroad. This previously neglected period in United States-Vietnam relations deals with issues such as Hanoi's constant exultation over the victory, American denial of responsibility, the division between the president's public declarations and congressional policies, and both sides' use of the MIA issue. Based primarily on recently declassified documents and former U.S. official Douglas Pike's uncensored collection, the work also makes use of media press sources from America, Vietnam, Britain, France, and China. Interviews with Vietnamese immigrants and former U.S. politicians provide insight unavailable in written histories. Appendices contain the February 1973 correspondence between President Nixon and the Prime Minister of the Democratic Republic of Vietnam, six diplomatic notes from 1976, and a January 30, 1979, letter from President Carter to Chinese Vice Premier Deng Xiaoping.
