Developmental Spans in Event Comprehension and Representation Paul van den Broek, Patricia J. Bauer, Tammy Bourg, 2013-12-16 This book is about building metaphorical bridges all sorts of bridges At the most basic level it concerns the bridges that individuals build to understand the events that they experience the bridges that connect the events in the mind s eye At another level it is about bridges that interconnect findings and theoretical frameworks concerning event comprehension and representation in different age groups ranging from infancy to adulthood Finally it is about building bridges between researchers who share interests yet may not ordinarily even be aware of each other's work. The success of the book will be measured in terms of the extent to which the contributors have been able to create a picture of the course of development across a wide span in chronological age and across different types of events from the fictional to the actual. The individuals whose work is represented in this book conduct their work in a shared environment; they all have an intellectual and scholarly interest in event comprehension and representation. These interests are manifest in the overlapping themes of their work. These include a focus on how people come to temporally integrate individual snapshots to form a coherent event that unfolds over time to understand cause and effect and to appreciate the role of the goal of events. Another overlapping theme involves the possibility of individual differences. These themes are apparent in work on the early development of representations of specific episodes and autobiographical memories and comprehension of complex events such as stories involving multiple characters and emotions. The editors of this volume had two missions: to create a development span by bringing together researchers working from infancy to adulthood and to create a bridge between individuals working from within the text comprehension perspective within the naturalistic perspective and with laboratory analogues to the naturalistic perspective. Their measure of success will be the extent to which they have been able to create a picture of the course of development across a wide span in chronological age and across different types of events from fictional to actual.

How to Enhance Learning Efficiency When Online Learning is Popular and Indispensable: Theory, Research and Practice Rong Lian, Chang Liu, Juzhe Xi, 2024-07-17. Online learning has become more and more common globally, whether for comfort adapting to work hours or just having the freedom to study from anywhere. And now, under the coronavirus pandemic, as people are having to stay at home, it has become more important than ever. Although the popularity of wireless network and portable smart device makes it possible for people to acquire and learn knowledge anytime and anywhere, it does not necessarily mean an increased learning performance. Relevant research in cognitive science has revealed possible limitations in online learning. For example, the knowledge acquired through online learning tends to be fragmented and lacks guidance for integrated thinking among different subjects, which makes it difficult for learners to form a systematic knowledge structure. Learners may experience cognitive overload, metacognitive illusion, and low learning efficiency in self-regulated learning. It follows that in the post-COVID-19 era, online learning puts forward new requirements and challenges to contemporary students, not only to their learning strategies but also to their positive character traits in learning. Most of the current learning theories were developed in the early 20th century and may not fit in well with the current situation, then possibly leading to inefficient learning and increased learning burden. Therefore, it is necessary and important to reexplore the influencing factors and mechanisms that affect the learning efficiency of students at all levels nowadays, based on which we could construct a theoretical model of efficient learning model.
