Surfactant Formulation Engineering using HLD and NAC Edgar Acosta,Jeffrey Harwell,David A. Sabatini,2025-04-28 Surfactants are molecules that contain groups that are water loving hydrophilic and oil loving lipophilic The central question in formulations is often which of the two portions dominate the behavior of the surfactant For many years that question was answered in terms of the surfactant structure only However the modern view is that the hydrophilic lipophilic nature of the surfactant is the result of surfactant structure and formulation conditions nature of the oil temperature aqueous phase composition as captured by a semi empirical equation called the hydrophilic lipophilic difference HLD The HLD is a dimensionless number that indicate the approach to the point where the surfactant inverts its solubility from being water soluble negative HLD to oil soluble positive HLD The HLD alone is a good indicator of how the formulation could behave but it does not produce any formulation property that can be used to predict product performance The net average curvature NAC are a set of equations that take the value of HLD to predict the properties of the formulation such as oil and or water solubilization capacity interfacial tension phase diagrams contact angle and others Surfactant Formulation Engineering using HLD and NAC will not only introduce the reader to HLD NAC but also to the practical use of these concepts in numerous applications ranging from application in the petroleum industry to environmental remediation to food cosmetic and pharmaceutical applications and even nanotechnology The last part of the book will look at the molecular origins of the empirical terms in HLD via the Integrated Free Energy Model IFEM Concentrates on the HLD and NAC providing industrially relevant examples Provides the only single depository for HLD parameters Balances theory and application with insights from both academic and industrial authors Includes examples relevant to a wide range of fields with
