Restricted Access Elizabeth Ellcessor,2016-03-29 How reconsidering digital media and participatory cultures from the standpoint of disability allows for a full understanding of accessibility While digital media can offer many opportunities for civic and cultural participation this technology is not equally easy for everyone to use Hardware software and cultural expectations combine to make some technologies an easier fit for some bodies than for others A YouTube video without closed captions or a social network site that is incompatible with a screen reader can restrict the access of users who are hard of hearing or visually impaired Often people with disabilities require accommodation assistive technologies or other forms of aid to make digital media accessible useable for them Restricted Access investigates digital media accessibility the processes by which media is made usable by people with particular needs and argues for the necessity of conceptualizing access in a way that will enable greater participation in all forms of mediated culture Drawing on disability and cultural studies Elizabeth Ellcessor uses an interrogatory framework based around issues of regulation use content form and experience to examine
