Certain Trumpets

This “beautifully written and reasoned” (Booklist) narrative by Pulitzer Prize-winning author Garry Wills examines what constitutes meaningful leadership, and why it is so essential to society. What makes a leader? How do we identify effective leadership, and how should—and shouldn’t—that power be used? In Certain Trumpets, Garry Wills presents portraits of eminent leaders including FDR to Ross Perot, King David, Martha Graham, and many others, offering an illuminating lens for studying society and ourselves. Dividing these portraits into sixteen leadership categories ranging from military to charismatic, intellectual, rhetorical, and elected, Wills highlights what makes each of his subjects unique, crafting along the way a distinct and incisive definition of leadership as a reciprocal engagement between two contrasting wills that serves to mobilize us toward a common good, and explaining why leadership is so often a contentious and emotionally charged subject. “A stunningly literate and thoughtful examination of what makes a leader...[and] a welcome antidote to some of the more egregious ‘management style’ drivel,” (Kirkus Reviews), Certain Trumpets is an inspiring and edifying tour through the history of an indispensable social art.

This Is Water

Only once did David Foster Wallace give a public talk on his views on life, during a commencement address given in 2005 at Kenyon College. The speech is reprinted for the first time in book form in THIS IS WATER. How does one keep from going through their comfortable, prosperous adult life unconsciously? How do we get ourselves out of the foreground of our thoughts and achieve compassion? The speech captures Wallace’s electric intellect as well as his grace in attention to others. After his death, it became a treasured piece of writing reprinted in The Wall Street Journal and the London Times, commented on endlessly in blogs, and emailed from friend to friend. Writing with his one-of-a-kind blend of causal humor, exacting intellect, and practical philosophy, David Foster Wallace probes the challenges of daily living and offers advice that renews us with every reading.

You Are Not Special

An inspirational reflection on the way we bring up children that will resonate with all parents. David McCullough, Jr.’s high-school graduation address, dubbed You Are Not Special when it went viral on YouTube, was a tonic for parents, students, and educators alike. Now he expands on that speech with wit and a perspective earned from raising four children and teaching high-school students for nearly 30 years. In this humorous and insightful book, McCullough takes a hard look at helicopter parents, questionable educational goals, professional university coaching, electronic distractions, and more — and advocates for a life of passionate engagement.

The Leader in Me

Children in today’s world are inundated with information about who to be, what to do and how to live. But what if there was a way to teach children how to manage priorities, focus on goals and be a positive influence on the world around them? The Leader in Me is that programme. It’s based on a hugely successful initiative carried out at the A.B. Combs Elementary School in North Carolina. To hear the parents of A. B Combs talk the pages Language, Globalization and the Making of a Tanzanian Beauty Queen Sabrina Billings, 2013-11-29 Through micro analysis of language use this book chronicles young women's pathways to becoming a Tanzanian beauty queen offering an original perspective on the intersection of language with globalization nationalism and inequality in urban East Africa This compelling linguistic ethnography considers the real life effects both on and off stage of language policy education and gender dynamics for the women competing in the pageants While highlighting many contestants' struggles for escape from poverty and patriarchy the book also emphasizes their creative strategies linguistic and otherwise for bettering their lives and shows how people living in a global economic periphery take part in and sometimes feel left out of the wider world

Speaking American Zevi Gutfreund, 2019-03-07 When Lyndon B Johnson signed the Bilingual Education Act of 1968 language learning became a touchstone in the emerging culture wars Nowhere was this more apparent than in Los Angeles where elected officials from both political parties had supported the legislation and where the most disruptive protests over it occurred The city with its diverse population of Latinos and Asian Americans is the ideal locus for Zevi Gutfreund's study of how language instruction informed the social construction of American citizenship Combining the history of language instruction school desegregation and civil rights activism as it unfolded in Japanese American and Mexican American communities in L A this timely book clarifies the critical and evolving role of language instruction in twentieth century American politics Speaking American reveals how for generations language instruction offered a forum for Angelino educators to articulate their responses to policies that racialized access to citizenship from the national origins immigration quotas of the Progressive Era through Congress's removal of race from these quotas in 1965 Meanwhile immigrant communities designed language experiments to counter efforts to limit their liberties Gutfreund's book is the first to place the experiences of Mexican Americans and Japanese Americans side by side as they navigated debates over Americanization programs intercultural education school desegregation and bilingual education In the process the book shows these language experiments helped Angelino immigrants introduce competing concepts of citizenship that were tied to their actions and deeds rather than to the English language itself Complicating the usual top down approach to the history of racial politics in education Speaking American recognizes the ways in which immigrant and ethnic activists as well as white progressives and conservatives have been deeply invested in controlling public and private aspects of language instruction in Los Angeles The book brings compelling analytic depth and breadth to its examination of the social and political landscape in a city still at the epicenter of American immigration politics Resources in Education, 2001 The Dönme Marc Baer, 2010 This is the first study of the modern history experience and ethno religious identity of the Dönme the descendants of seventeenth century Jewish converts to Islam in Ottoman and Greek Salonica and in Turkish Istanbul Routledge Handbook of Modern Japanese Literature Rachael Hutchinson, Leith Douglas Morton, 2016-06-03 The Routledge Handbook of Modern Japanese Literature provides a comprehensive overview of how we study Japanese literature today Rather than taking a purely chronological approach to the content the chapters survey the state of the field through a number of pressing issues and themes examining the ways in which it is possible to read modern Japanese literature and situate it in relation to critical theory The Handbook examines various modes of literary production such as fiction poetry and critical essays as distinct forms of expression that nonetheless are closely interrelated Attention is drawn to the idea of the bunjin as a person of letters and a more realistic assessment is provided of how writers have engaged with ideas not labelled a novelist or poet but a writer who may at one time or another choose to write in various forms The book provides an overview of major authors and genres by situating them within broader themes that have defined the way writers have produced literature in modern Japan as well as how those works have been read and understood by different readers in different time periods The Routledge Handbook of Modern Japanese Literature draws from an international array of established experts in the field as well as promising young researchers It represents a wide variety of critical approaches giving the study a broad range of perspectives This handbook will be of interest to students and scholars of Asian Studies Literature Sociology Critical Theory and History
