African American Novels in the Black Lives Matter Era E. Lâle Demirtürk, 2019-08-09 African American Novels in the Black Lives Matter Era Transgressive Performativity of Black Vulnerability as Praxis in Everyday Life explores the undoing of whiteness by black people who dissociate from scripts of black criminality through radical performative reiterations of black vulnerability It studies five novels that challenge the embodied discursive practices of whiteness in interracial social encounters showing how they use strategic performances of Blackness to enable subversive practices in everyday life which is constructed and governed by white mechanisms of racialized control The agency portrayed in these novels opens up alternative spaces of Blackness to impact the social world and effects transformative change as a forceful critique of everyday life African American Novels in the Black Lives Matter Era shows how these novels reformulate the problem of black vulnerability as a constitutive source of the right to life in their refusal of subjection to vulnerability enacted by white institutional and individual forms of violence It positions a white black encounter oriented reading of these neo resistance novels of the Black Lives Matter era as a critique of everyday life in an effort to explore spaces of radical performativity of blackness to make happen social change and transformation

Midnight Sister Souljah, 2009 Souljah's follow up to her bestselling novel The Coldest Winter Ever is another gritty coming of age tale picking up the story of Midnight a character in Coldest Winter as he tries desperately to navigate American culture Brooklyn streets and the dicey business of growing up The novel begins as seven year old Midnight and his pregnant mother Umma are forced to leave their privileged life in Sudan for a hardscrabble American existence Midnight spends his formative years in Brooklyn guiding and translating for his loyal loving and talented mother helping her get a factory job while encouraging her to start a clothing line Eventually Midnight starts working at a Chinatown fish shop finds love joins a dangerous hustler's basketball league and tries to disentangle his ambivalent feelings toward romance family and personal honor Souljah's sensitive treatment of her protagonist is honest and affecting with some realistic moments of crisis Unfortunately a slack plot and slow pacing cause serious bloat and Souljah's distinctive prose is woefully unpolished Frustrations aside Souljah has obvious talent and sincere motives making her a street lit sophomore worth watching
