Migrant Daughter Coming Of Age As A Mexican American Woman:

Migrant Daughter Frances Esquibel Tywoniak, Mario T. García, 2000-01-17 Taking us from the open spaces of rural New Mexico and the fields of California's Great Central Valley to the intellectual milieu of student life in Berkeley during the 1950s this memoir based on an oral history by Mario T. García is the powerful and moving testimonio of a young Mexican American woman's struggle to rise out of poverty. Migrant Daughter is the coming of age story of Frances Esquibel Tywoniak who was born in Spanish speaking New Mexico, moved with her family to California during the Depression to attend school and work as a farm laborer and subsequently won a university scholarship becoming one of the few Mexican Americans to attend the University of California Berkeley at that time. Giving a personal perspective on the conflicts of living in and between cultures, this eloquent story provides a rare glimpse into the life of a young Mexican American woman who achieved her dreams of obtaining a university education. In addition to the many fascinating details of everyday life, the narrative provides Mario T. García's introduction contextualizes the place and importance of Tywoniak's life. Both introduction and narrative illustrate the process by which Tywoniak negotiated her relation to ethnic identity and cultural allegiances, the ways in which she came to find education as a channel for breaking with fieldwork patterns of life and the effect of migration on family and culture. This deeply personal memoir portrays a courageous Mexican American woman moving between many cultural worlds, a life story that at times parallels and at times diverges from the real life experiences of thousands of other unnamed women.

Migrant Daughter, 2000 Taking us from the open spaces of rural New Mexico and the fields of California's Great Central Valley to the intellectual milieu of student life in Berkeley during the 1950s, this memoir based on an oral history by Mario T. García is the powerful and moving testimonio of a young Mexican American woman's struggle to rise out of poverty.

Narratives of Mexican American Women Alma M. García, 2003-11-05 Alma García offers a bold new interpretation of identity formation for second generation immigrants in America. The narratives of Mexican American women in higher education reveal their journeys of self discovery, a process filled with tensions, contradictions, and ambiguities. García captures the spirit of their struggles to understand their sense of self, culture, and society. Her qualitative analyses reveal the emergent processes by which these women negotiate ethnic, gender, and class identities with their Mexican immigrant parents and with their university communities. García integrates a wide range of theoretical frameworks to study educational life experiences. Her findings offer significant insight into the processes of cultural continuity and change and the potential for upward mobility for immigrants. García proposes new university policies and curriculum changes to improve the situation for second generation students. She calls for the reform of higher education in the United States to open its doors more widely to Mexican American students and other underrepresented groups to make the educational system truly reflective of the ethnic diversity that has always formed the core of American society. García's new book is a valuable contribution to Mexican American studies, ethnic studies, women's studies, comparative education, and sociology.
